Hamlet
Low Douglas, lean, bicycle-riding Director of the Budget, is in a tough spot.

He is more out of sympathy with Roosevelt's gold-buying policy than his friend Dean Acheson. He is out of step on many other things. This is a hard blow for Douglas. At the start he was a regular visitor at the Roosevelt bedside breakfasts. No man save Professor Moley was closer to F. D. R., but now except for balancing the budget, Low is pretty much on the shelf.

Douglas has been thinking of resigning. But his alternatives are not promising. He cannot go back to Congress. The war veterans of Arizona, which because of the climate has more than its quota of him, bitterly. Furthermore, the President's intimate friend, Mrs. (Continued on page 5)

ROOSEVELT SCORES ROLPH SHAKEUP HITS U. S. AGENCY

AAA POWERS CLIPPED BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Powers of the AAA were sharply curtailed tonight when part of its code was transferred to the NRA by President Roosevelt.

This change was announced by the White House tonight following a late evening visit by George N. Peek, agricultural adjustment administrator as the culmination of a sharp controversy within the agricultural department with Secretary Wallace, reported to be taking the side of the farm trust group against Peek.

Mr. Roosevelt consulted by telephone with Wallace and Johnson before announcing the change.

The White House statement issued at 11 P. M. while Mr. Roosevelt himself was addressing the Federal Council of Agriculture, announced that all codes under negotiation by AAA would be turned over to the NRA.

This was interpreted to mean that all AAA code negotiations would be transferred to NRA except those covering such industries as milling, packing, canning and other dealing directly with raw farm produce.

PRESIDENT HITS MOBS FOR ACTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—UP.—Vigorous condemnation of all who condone lynch law was sounded tonight by President Roosevelt in an address that called on America to compel, through public opinion, a more certain justice, and went on to predict that "this beloved country of ours is entering upon a time of great gain."

Mr. Roosevelt's speech was before the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in Constitution Hall, and was his first utterance on the mob violence that in the last two weeks has rocked first California and then Maryland and Missouri.

"This new generation," he said, "is not content with preaching against that vile form of collective murder lynch law, which has broken out in our midst anew. We know that it is a murder, and a deliberate and definite defiance of the commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill.' We did not excuse those in high places or in low who condone lynch law."

Mr. Roosevelt's remarks were interpreted as a strong rebuke to Governor Rolph of California, who a few days ago expressed approval of the hanging by a mob of two kidnappers and slayers.

The President continued: "That is thinking America goes further. It is thinking government of its own that will be sufficiently strong to protect the innocent and at the same time to cry talize a (Continued on page 5)

RUM PRICE SLASH SEEN IN "BATTLE"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—UP.—The government massed its forces tonight to drive the bootlegger out of business and punish other law violators taking advantage of the immediate confusion surrounding repeal of federal prohibition to produce or distribute alcoholic beverages illegally.

Special attention, it was stated, will be paid to prices. Officials are studying this problem with a view to enforcing prices low enough so the consumer will not patronize bootleggers, and yet high enough to allow the industry a reasonable profit.

LOWER PRICES
The right to force distillers to raise or lower prices lies in the hands of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration. Interest into this phase of the repeal situation was increased as a result of President Roosevelt's plan last night urging the nation to cooperate in the effort to rid the country of the bootlegger by patronizing only those dealers properly licensed by State and Federal government.

The administration, it was indicated, realizes its battle with the bootlegger may be prolonged. The alcohol beverage unit, formerly the prohibition enforcement agency of the treasury, will keep most of its 100 agents in the field, temporarily, at least.

STUDY PROBLEMS
Authorities said the agency would be assigned to both wet and dry states until the government has had sufficient time to familiarize itself with new problems arising from repeal and to devise ways of meeting them.

One of these complications came before John S. Hurley, chief of the federal liquor law enforcement division, when the government issued scores of federal licenses to liquor peddlers in the dry state of Utah. Hurley planned to confer with At (Continued on page 5)

GAEL ELEVEN WILL PLAY IN FINAL CONTEST

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE Dec. 6.—Madigan's colorful troupe of Gallowglass Gael players play their last game of the season this Saturday on the home field at Kezar stadium in San Francisco when they clash with the flashy Southern Methodist University Mustangs of Dallas, Texas.

This is the second meeting of the two teams from the West and the Southwest. Ray Morrison's Mustangs took home a 7-2 defeat in 1931 when their aerial game proved ineffective and the Gaels stopped three goal line thrusts on the one yard line.

Since that hair-raising tilt Morrison has built up an entirely new team, composed this year largely of sophomores. The Mustangs abandoned to a great extent their deadly aerial game and mixed with their offense a lightning deceptive ground game interspersed with smartly rifled passes against their opponents.

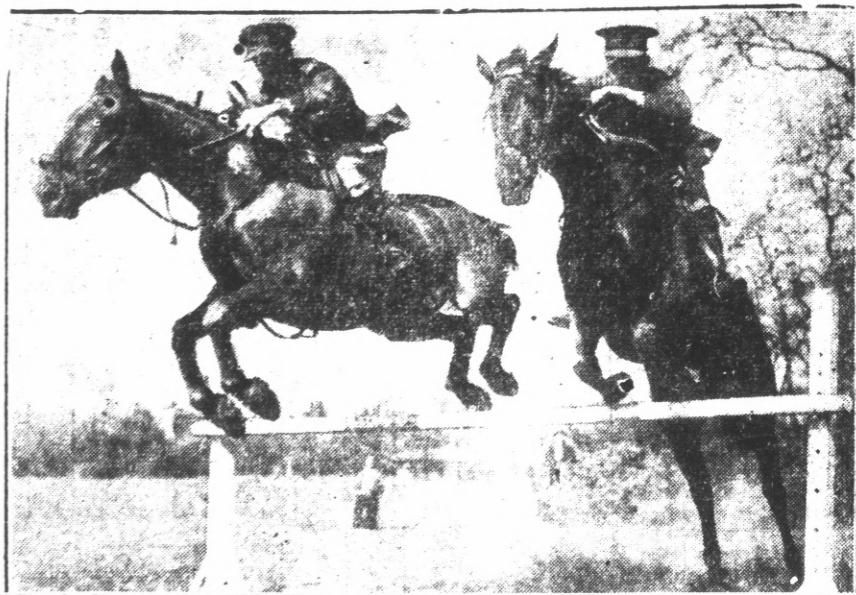

Unperturbed over the fact that the heavy Gael eleven was the only one this year successful in stopping the speedy Irvine (Cotton) Warrenton Southern California scoring ace, Morrison has indicated that he will start "Mid-let" Wilson, 150-pound pony of the Mustang backfield, who will be the spearhead of the Methodist running attack. Wilson, like Warrenton, has been kept in reserve until the opposing eleven has been worn down or until a scoring opportunity presents itself. He has delivered seven touchdowns in this manner.

The captain of the Mustangs is Ray Pugh, right end and veteran pass receiver. For the first time this season the Gaels will be pitted against a line that is its equal in weight. This will be backed by still greater plunging power in the backfield. Scourge 200 pounds is the fullback of this combination and forms the nucleus of the Mustang line players.

Saint Mary's will open the game with the veteran line of Yates at center; Gilbert and Eldayuan at guards; Yezerski and Carl Jorgensen at tackles and the pair of ace brothers, Fred and George Madigan at the wing posts.

Madigan's starting backfield combination, the crack outfit that has scored on all opponents, will be Sid Ahern at quarter; George (teehouse) Wilson and Ambling Al Nicholmi at halves and Gord Parrie at the fullback position.

Speaking Of Sports

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.,—UP.—A mother and an older brother in a modest, six room bungalow outside the city. The house is located on a property which once was his father's farm. Man Honors

During his six years in the majors, Klein has been batting champion, home run champion and "most valuable" player in the National league.

He has a major league batting average of .359, his poorest year being in 1931 when he hit .337 and his best year in 1930 when he batted .386.

Klein gives his best to baseball, but there is nothing flashy in the way he proceeds. Off the field he is shy, reticent and of exemplary habits.

He never breaks training nor becomes involved in any affair which would place him before the public eye.

Few Hobbies

He has no eccentricities. His hobbies during the off season consist of such prosaic sports as hunting, howling and hiking.

MORE LIQUOR LAW RULINGS ASKED WEBB

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Dec. 6.—U. S. Attorney General U. S. Webb was asked today by the state board of equalization to clarify the state law which prohibits sale of liquor in certain zones surrounding state institutions.

Confusion existed over the status of teachers' colleges, University of California at Los Angeles, schools for the blind and some other institutions.

The law provides that liquor may not be sold within one and one-half mile of the Berkeley campus of the University of California, and also provides specifically for restricted areas around the university farm at Davis, State penitentiaries and reformatories and the veterans' home at Yountville.

It was believed that U. S. L. A. would fall into the classification applied to the Berkeley institution.

The law provides that the one and one-half mile restricted zone applies to universities having an enrollment of more than 1,000 of whom more than 500 reside on the campus.

Teachers colleges at Chico, San Francisco, San Jose, Fresno, Santa Barbara and San Diego have enrollments of more than 1,000 each, but none has students residing on the campus.

The board of equalization was inclined to believe that sales would not be restricted around the teachers colleges named.

Conditions In The Country Are Improving

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—UP.—An optimistic spirit continued to prevail in Wall Street tonight and chart students pointed to the rail strength as one of the most encouraging factors.

The greatest cheer in Wall Street today came from the dividend reports. There were several resumpptions. Many regular dividends were declared. There were some special dividends particularly in tobacco field. One dividend, projected in the Street, which was beneficial to market sentiment was that of Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad. Declaration of extra dividends, resumpptions and increases kept the forecast of many traders, that the year will find many companies taking action as a result of generally improved business. Business improvement is seen to be an accepted fact in Wall Street with one prominent railroad man today adding its strength to forward legal continued betterment of the industrial picture.

General Motors overseas sale in November were far in excess of any corresponding month in the previous three years and brought renewed floor interest into all of the motor issues.

Another factor that was also in for the immediate future came from the bond market. Today was the sixth consecutive day that prices in this market exceeded 100. Only U. S. Government obligations showed weakness.

Molloy, in a suit, he filed today against Rondo Molloy.

The couple married in April 24, 1929, and separated December 1, 1933. Custody of three children and $60 monthly for their support are asked by Mrs. Molloy.

Community property consists of household furniture at 2701 Waller street, Richmond.

Attorneys John Moore and Francis P. Boland of Richmond represent the plaintiff.

TAX TIGHTENING

Millionaire income tax dodgers will have a harder time evading the higher bracket surtaxes next year.

Behind a closely guarded veil of secrecy, the Ways and Means committee of the House has been working on this for several weeks. Their job of phasing tax holes promises to be a thorough one.

One report is that the committee has inquired of the Attorney General regarding the possibility of making the new provisions retroactive so that the government can turn its eyes on Albert H. Wiggin, Clarence Dillon, J. P. Morgan, Charles Mitchell, and others whose tax returns so aroused the legislators.

Just how drastic a job they are doing will be revealed early next month when the committee holds public hearings on proposed amendments to the tax bill. Committee members have the full support of the President, who in a private talk before they began told them to go the limit.

RODEO NEWS

RODEO, Dec. 6.—The entire Rodeo community has been saddened this week by the death of Mrs. Myrtle Smith, beloved pioneer resident of Garrettsville.

Mrs. Smith, who was a school operator at the Garrettsville hospital in Richmond last Friday, November 23, and it was thought that she was well on the road to recovery. Her death, Saturday morning, December 2, came as a shock to relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith came to Rodeo 26 years ago and was the first family to purchase lots in Rodeo and establish a home there.

Mrs. Smith was born in England, spending the early part of her life and obtaining her education in France. She was the first to place her letter in the Community church here when it was established and has been an active and loyal member during the years that followed.

She was secretary of the Missionary Society at the time of her death and past president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the church.

Her name is on the cornerstone of the Rodeo Grammar school and was one of the first trustees of the school when it was first erected.

Mrs. Smith has been librarian of Rodeo for the past 20 years. She was past grand arch druidess of the Grand Circle of California, holding this title during 1915 and 1916 and was a charter member of the Rodeo chapter of that lodge, serving as secretary and treasurer at the time of her death. A charter member of Rodeo Rebekah lodge, a member of the Crockett chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Funeral services were held at the Ryan Funeral Home in Richmond Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and members of the Grand lodge were present to perform their services for a departed member. Rev. R. N. Powers of the Rodeo Community church and Rev. G. H. Whipple, retired pastor of the Crockett church and the first pastor of Rodeo Community church, and a close friend of Mrs. Smith, for the past 36 years, conducted the services. The remains were laid to rest in the Sunset Mortuary.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, J. D. Smith, two daughters, Mrs. Flora Matthe of Needles, Calif., and Mrs. Nellie Smith of Richmond, and three brothers, William H. Jeffery of San Gabriel, Edward J. Jeffery of Santa Rosa and Arthur Jeffery of Martinez.

I. C. C. Plan Would Add to Employment

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—UP.—A plan to re-employ hundreds of railroad workers in Pacific coast and inter-continental states, through repair or modification of the fourth section of the I. C. C. act, dealing with the long and short haul regulations, was announced here today by representatives of 21 standard railroad organizations.

Since 1919, the labor leaders claimed, the shift of non-perishable trans-continental freight from the strictly regulated railroads to steamship lines, plying the Panama canal has resulted in unemployment for hundreds of organized labor members.

Repair or amendment of the long and short haul clause of the interstate commerce act would result in the railroads again being able to compete on a fair trade basis for such traffic now virtually monopolized by the inter-continental steamship lines, it was asserted.

Eastern Star lodge at Rodeo gave a starwell party for her officers on Tuesday in the school building. Mrs. S. N. Weil will retire from office on December 15, and Miss Ethel J. Donald has been elected matron for the coming year.

An interesting program has been arranged for the entertainment of her guests and each officer was presented with a gift by Mrs. S. N. Weil.

OKAY GIVEN NEW HIGHWAY TO CROCKETT

CROCKETT, Dec. 6.—Obtaining final approval from government agencies to the highway and road projects he has outlined under the federal financed civil works administration plan, County Surveyor R. R. Arnold has announced that he expects to have men at work next week on a major improvement—grading of the first mile of the projected new road that will join Crockett with the Franklin Canyon highway.

The route branches off the Franklin Canyon road near the home of Joseph Brengle, crossing properties owned by Brengle, Fred Stewart, the Port Costa Development Company and the California & Hawaiian Sugar Refining Company. The route is 3.78 miles in length and the maximum grade is six percent.

Crockett residents have long urged a connection with the Franklin Canyon highway, which ultimately will be developed by the state as part of the industrial highway. It is the aim to grade as much of the new road route as possible under the federal financing program.

NEXT TIME, TRY THE TRAIN!

HERE is a brief summary of the sensational reductions in rail travel costs now in effect every day:

1. PULLMAN RATES CUT ONE-THIRD on all railroads in the West and Southwest, which means a reduction to all cities in the United States for upper and lower berths, sections, compartments, drawing rooms and all other kinds of accommodations in Standard and Tourist Pullmans.

Here are examples of the new rates for a Standard and Tourist lower berth.

| To | Standard | Tourist |
|----------------|----------|---------|
| LOS ANGELES | $3.00 | $1.50 |
| PORTLAND, ORE. | $5.50 | $2.00 |
| RENO, NEVADA | $2.00 | $1.25 |
| CHICAGO | $15.75 | $8.50 |

2. ONE WAY COACH and TOURIST fares reduced to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and other mid-western points. For example, from most California points, you can travel to Chicago in a coach for only $34.50. Or in a Tourist Pullman for $14.40, plus $8.50 for a Tourist lower berth.

3. STANDARD "ALL-YEAR" ROUNDTIPS to all standard destinations GREATLY REDUCED. For example, $111 to Chicago and back from most California points, as against $144.26 last winter. Good in all types of accommodations. Return limit one year.

4. STANDARD ONE WAY FARES REDUCED ONE-SIXTH on all western railroads. Good in all types of accommodations.

5. "2c A MILE" ROUNDTIPS (good in all types of accommodations, 21-day limit) are continued on Southern Pacific.

6. "MEALS SELECT" CONTINUED on Southern Pacific. Luncheons and dinners for 80c to $1.25, breakfasts for 50c to 90c on all S. P. dining cars.

Take your car with you. Fast freight service and low rates for passengers' automobiles.

"Dad, I simply refuse to talk to you! If you talk like that about Jim, Jim's a good man! I—I—"
"Come, Mary. I'm your father. It's my duty to get to the bottom of this. Your mother and I,

"Jim not honest?" Mary was beside herself. "Daddy, how can you say such a thing! And to think of it! I am sure that I can make other people suffer. Ignacio shows you don't know him. If you knew the truth of the matter—" She paused.

"What's what we want to know, Mary."

"Well"—Mary's voice was low—"the truth is, daddy, we lost everything. But Jim is on an island with Padre Ignacio—looking for some gold!"

""LOOKING for gold, on an island! Say, now, Mary, you're too smart to believe any coon-and-bull story like that! Men don't go on islands for gold in our day. They're more apt to dig in other people's pockets."

"Father, I must ask you to stop talking like that!"

Mrs. Dalton was weeping. Papa

"Well, ma," he said, "we'll be going back home soon now. And we're takin' our daughter along with us! I could never leave Mary here!"

Mary flew into a temper again. "Dad," she declared, "you'll have to leave me here because I'm not a going! I'm sorry you've decided husband, and I'm sticking—that's all!"

"Then we'll pack and get out. My choice. Mary has made her choice. There is no fault of ours if her husband is unworthy."

"Mrs. Dalton was sobbing. But she stopped, and they all suddenly caught their breath."

Jim had come dashing like a cyclone through the parlor door.

"Hurrah, Mary—it worked! It worked!"

"Oh, Jim! Then everything is saved!"

PAPA DALTON was still swift-

"Oh, hello," said that worked. Jim?"

"Long story," but the long and short of it is this: a friend and myself have been hunting a treasure on an island in the Sound. We knew it was there, but we couldn't find the spot. We did a lot of digging, but that didn't work—"

"Didn't, eh?"

"No. So we set up what they call a radio surveyor to catch the ground waves. Every kind of thing has its own vibration. And that's how we found it!"

"Sounds like a fish story to me, young man!"

Jim was too honest perhaps to realize that Papa Dalton was doubting him.

"It does sound like fiction, doesn't it?" he agreed. "But truth is stranger than fiction, you know, sometimes."

"So it seems. So it seemed to me when I read this stuff in the paper."

Jim blushed. "Father, that does look bad, all right! Don't blame you for wondering. But with this as a fortune, I'm able to clear my name and to the rescue of those stockholders of Perfect Vacuum."

"And—er—how much is there of the gold that sang a song to you?"

"How much? Oh, I can't tell you that, Father! We haven't got it yet! We've just found where it was, that's all. But there'll be as plenty judging by the vibrations that come across. Gosh, Mmm, those vibrations were simply swell!"

NEW CHANGES IN RACE LAW TO BE SOUGHT

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 6.—UP—Assemblyman Thomas Maloney of San Francisco indicated today he would sponsor legislation to change provisions of the racing act at the next legislature. He criticized "autocratic powers assumed and abused" by the California horse racing board, created by the part-mutual betting act of the last legislature.

Maloney led the fight for legalized betting. He said today he was nettled by the board's failure to grant track permits.

"Not one license has been granted, although the act has been in the hands of the commission since June 18," said Maloney.

"Only Tanforan has obtained a temporary license. Legitimate promoters have been refused proper hearings. Instead of getting a revenue of $500,000 from state racing this year, the commission will get something like $50,000 from Tanforan and a couple of fair meetings."

Governor Rolph, visited by Maloney, refused to be drawn into the matter, indicating he would give the commission a free hand.

The Digestive Processes Of the Intestines and How They Work

AS soon as the pancreatic juice and the bile have started their action on the acid of digested food from the stomach, their presence stimulates the intestinal walls.

being more and more absorbed. As this mixture moves through the twenty-five or more feet of the intestine, it meets more and more food particles. One can plainly see that all food particles must be broken up and liquefied if the transformation into blood and bone, muscle and brain, are to go on successfully. All food that is not broken down and remains unused causes a stagnation which we call constipation.

THIS condition not only interferes with proper elimination but leaves a fertile field for bacterial growth and the spread of infection. There is very little absorption of nourishment in the stomach, though it is probable that alcohol and some sugar are absorbed there. The small intestine is where most of the absorption takes place. Many folks think that all digestive difficulties are to be found in the stomach. The failure to make sure that all food passes properly and promptly through the small bowel gives rise to the intestinal toxemias, and infections which make life miserable for us.

THE mouth and stomach only act upon the solid portions of food, to break down the connective tissue and to prepare it for digestion by the pancreatic juice and the bile. The bile and pancreatic juice convert the fats into acids and soap, and the carbohydrates into glucose. Together with the proteins which are changed into amino-acids. This is all done to prepare them for absorption. Your lips are the final wall into the blood vessels and lymph channels, to be carried to the different parts of the body where they are needed.

WE know of no law by which some portions pass into one set of vessels and some into others. Some rule controls this but we do not know what it is. We only know that when a portion of the body needs fats or sugars or proteins, these ingredients are carried to the spot and the cells take up what they need. Most of the fats pass from the intestines into the thoracic duct or large lymph channel which carries them to the upper abdomen and into the chest and lungs where each area takes up what it needs.

THE carbohydrates pass into the portal vein, which carries them to the liver, where they are transformed into glycogen and sent out to the body cells or stored up for future use. The proteins, as amino-acids are taken up directly by the blood stream and distributed over the body. No cells take up more of any kind of food than they need. It appears that the excess is carried to the liver which stores it up or transforms it into absorbable material, or passes it out as waste.

THE liver is the chemical factory of our anatomy. It is the largest glandular organ in the body and has a vast amount of work to do. It manufactures and excretes bile and its ferments; stores it up in the gall bladder till it is needed and then passes it on. It takes up the excess of proteins and stores them up or converts this excess into waste. It is a store house and distributing plant. If there is a complete lack of carbohydrates in the food, the liver will convert the products of protein digestion into sugar. The bile secreted by the liver not only aids very much in the digestion of foods, but it excretes the products of its disintegration of haemoglobin, or red coloring matter of the blood.

IT IS easy to see that the liver does a vast amount of work, not only converting food products into properties, that can be used by the various tissues of the body but excreting a great amount of waste products. It is no wonder that, when your liver is "out of order," you are hard to live with.

A Schedule Is Best

It is important to rear babies and children according to a regular schedule, better for them and really the only way a busy mother can get through her work. If babies are fed and given their naps at exactly the same time each day, mother knows just how to plan her day and baby is happier and healthier also.

A WISE WOMAN OILS HER LIPS DURING WINTER

By JACQUELINE HUNT

OH, DEAR, lips are such a bother! Especially when you can't seem to find a rouge that won't crack, and when your lips chap and become rough or break open.

MISS HUNT

cream preparation on your lips at night and keep them roughed up or pained during the day.

Be sure and remove the lipstick when you cleanse your skin at night. Then use a little toilet lanoline, cocoa butter, camphor or pomade and massage into the lips, smoothing from side to side. Leave some of the oil on the lips overnight. After you have rinsed your face in the morning and applied your makeup, massage more of the pomade or cream into your lips and then remove every trace of it with soft tissues.

Now apply your lipstick—a soft, creamy kind preferably. Blend it smoothly into your lips and then massage into them a bit more of the cream. This little trick leaves even ordinary lipstick much more permanent and will keep your lips moist and natural looking.

There are several interesting things to keep in mind when you are applying an indelible lipstick. According to the chemist who is responsible for them, they contain two types of color, the permanent type and a super-imposed color which gives your lips the right shade. In using, apply the color evenly all over the lips and blot off the excess color by biting your lips on a clean tissue instead of wiping it off.

When the excess color of indelible lipstick is wiped off, only the permanent tint may remain which gives your lips an artificial bluish effect. By blotting gently, the true lip color will last for several hours without retouching. This is an important factor in choosing a lipstick, since lips must have artificial color in the winter. The cold weather has a way of draining every particle of natural color from the lips and leaving them bluish and looking like a dead leaf. Camphor or lip balm will help keep the permanent lipstick natural looking and non-drying to the lips.

After coming back to the soft creamy lipstick, here is a suggestion that you will find worth trying the next time your cheeks look a bit pale and you haven't any paste rouge handy. Apply two or three little dots of lipstick to each cheek and blend the color carefully. You will find the results quite satisfactory.

ANSWER TO QUERY
Dear Miss Hunt: My problem is a little different from most. I have always had a good position and plenty of money to spend until lately. As a result I have depended upon beauty shops for expensive facials, shampoos, waves and manicures. Now when I can scarcely spare a dollar a week for treatments, I'm helpless. Can you tell me how I can look my best? I'll be forever grateful.—G. M.

ANSWER: The first thing you should do is to make yourself a cosmetic and beauty budget. If you can put aside as much as a dollar a week for professional attention, then you can obviously afford only one treatment a week and you may have to go to less expensive shops than you are accustomed to. Learn to shampoo your own hair except on very special occasions and save money that way. You can make a perfectly good shampoo by melting the odds and ends of bathroom soap in hot water.

That week when you can give yourself a simple home facial and have a professional manicure or wave. Such a scheme will enable you to have some professional care and at the same time learn to do things for yourself. You will find it is a lot of fun, too, once you get onto the tricks. Follow my columns everyday. I outline many simple beauty treatments that even the most inexperienced can follow.

Present-Day Customs

No pictures in the home seems to be the mode at the present time. However, one or two carefully selected pictures will give a home-like appearance to many rooms and some really require them as a finish. In the small house attractively framed mirrors answer the purpose better as they give an appearance of size to the small room.

SERVE SOUPS FOR ECONOMY

By JUDITH WILSON

SOUPS are mighty important whether you serve them at almost every meal or only on rare occasions. They waft secrets and reveal the character of the meals to come. And soups start things off amiably whether you serve them to lure out a dinner that otherwise seems too skimpy or whether you serve them to add dignity and formality to a special meal.

There's a "right" soup for any type of menu and you can take a meal in themselves and a real delight to the diner. Try the little trick of building your luncheons or suppers around a soup. You can choose a filling creamed soup from a tin or you can make a substantial chowder from vegetables or from meat and fish.

Try making new soup by combining some of the tempting contents of the cans with the stock from meat scraps or from vegetables and adding unusual seasonings. You can also make your soups more appetizing by using different kinds of crackers and packaged biscuits. Toast them just right or have them in hot and paws.

Onion Soup

For the hearty onion soup is the first menu melt two tablespoons butter in a saucepan and add four medium sized onions that have been peeled and chopped fine. Cook, stirring frequently, until the onions are soft. Add two cups boiling water and simmer until the water has boiled away and the onions are very soft. Add one quart of whole milk, keeping about a fourth cup and cook for fifteen minutes. Beat the yolks of two eggs with the extra milk then add to the soup. Season to taste with salt and black pepper. Cook a minute or two longer, stirring constantly. Put a slice of toast in each soup bowl, pour over the hot soup and serve at once.

If you want to use the above soup for the main course, add two medium sized diced potatoes to the chopped onions and cook to a puree. This makes a thicker, richer soup.

A Tasty Soup

Your icebox may reveal a few bones and scraps from the Thanksgiving turkey. If so put them all into a kettle and cover with cold water. Add one-half cup chopped celery and a medium sized onion cut into pieces. Simmer the bones and scraps for two hours, then strain. Melt one tablespoon butter and blend with one tablespoon of flour as a

New York—What type of dress to wear under a winter coat—that's what every woman wants to know. As usual, there is more than one correct answer to the query. One must of course be careful to select a dress appropriate to the occasion.

The Coat Dress

The coat dress, originally designed to be independent of a coat, is not above making a statement under a coat now that winter is here. Some women, you know, the ultra-feminine type, do not hesitate to wear a suit under a top coat, or even an undercoat of coat. That is practical only when she has a suit for the occasion, something to wear for afternoon or some other very dressy occasion. But when you study fashions, you will everywhere find that it is women who are wearing them. There are even evening tailors and very slick they are, to be on the safe side.

Velvet As Trimming

In attempting to observe the fashion with which dress is being worn, it is a fact that velvet is being used in a variety of ways. The contrast between velvet and the coat dress is a new trend. James Weldon Johnson, Negro . . . Author, Poet, Diplomat and Educator

THE London Scottboro trial and the reports of negro students tend to make one believe that the dark-skinned folks of the South are only for trouble. It could be better from the South as a whole the story of James Weldon Johnson, one of the finest American Negroes of our time, an educator, a poet, diplomat and author.

James Weldon Johnson was born in Jacksonville, Fla., and his childhood was very much like the childhood of any average youngster in the America of the Seventies and Eighties. He remembers, for example, that in his house there was a marble table holding a pair of ivory balls and some photograph albums, and that his mother used to read "David Copperfield" to him, or some book in which she could mimic a Cockney accent or an Irish brogue. She had been well educated in Nassau, in the British West Indies, and she was something of a musician. His father was originally from Richmond. He had attained a position of some affluence in Nassau, and in Florida he was a landowner.

Young Johnson reversed one Southern tradition amusingly. Because of his mother's illness, he was nursed by a white friend and neighbor. "I do not intend to boast about a white mammy," he remarks artlessly. "For I have perceived bad taste in those Southern whites who are continually boasting about their black mammy. I know the temptation for them to do so is very strong."

In the same way he was later very courteous to ladies who told him how nice their Negro butlers were, because he could see how charming they meant to be. Neither his father nor his mother taught him anything directly about race. His mother taught him that in due course, in his own sweet way. As a child, he was somewhat restricted in play, but he managed to pick up an unconscious race superiority complex, because the most interesting things that came under his observation were being done by colored men. They drove the horse and mule teams, they built the houses, they laid the tracks, they painted the buildings, and fences, they loaded and unloaded the ships.

AT STANTON SCHOOL for colored children he got an introduction into the rough den of hard games that he enjoyed very much, and there he became a first-rate baseball pitcher, master of a curve that was without equal. A yellow fever epidemic caused him to miss a year of school, and for a time he worked for a doctor whose unusual cultural background was decisive in sharpening his ambition for a career. For a time he taught school and became the head of Stanton. Then he learned law, not in a school, but in the traditional lawyer's office, and made the first Negro to attempt to be admitted to the bar through open examination.

The career as a lawyer presently gave way to the career as a composer of popular songs and musical comedies. James Weldon Johnson and his brother Rosamond developed their young musical experiments to the point where a New York invasion seemed plausible, so they tried it. There they met Bob Cole, one of the most talented and versatile Negroes ever connected with the stage, and the three formed a partnership which flourished. Johnson's diplomatic career resulted from his work in the 1904 campaign to elect Theodore Roosevelt to the Presidency. He received a consularship to Puerto Cabello, in Venezuela. Later he started to write, first for a Negro newspaper in New York, then for the Dyer Anti-Lynching Bill passed in Congress. Now he is occupant of an honorary chair of creative writing at Fiske University. But it is not a position of retirement. He is only 42. And he has every intention of devoting vigorous years to come to the advancement of his race.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "I have often wondered whether to use the word scalloped or esalloped on the menus. I own a small tea room. Of course you understand that I refer to dishes prepared with crumbs.—F. B."

ANSWER: The word "scalloped" is more commonly used on menus though "esalloped" is perhaps more technically correct.

WOE TO HUBBY WHO CRITICIZES WIFE'S CLOTHES

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

SHOULD a husband have anything to say in selecting his wife's clothes? One would think so, especially since it is usually the husband who has to pay for them. But how good is a man's judgment on what women should wear?

The honest-to-goodness husband and wife takes a selective interest in his wife's wardrobe. He invariably turns her out either a weak imitation or a caricature of himself. She's got a fight on her hands from the start to keep out of tweeds, or, still worse, a blue serge suit with cravat and all the fixings, even to cuff buttons and a turned-down collar.

IT'S the tedious cat in them, that's all. Denied all the lovely things women may wear, they just naturally retaliate by denying them to her. Perhaps we would buy or know what to buy if we thought for an instant we could get away with it. Personally, I have always pinned to be worn by a swain in satin knee breeches and something easier on the cheek than a starched shirt front.

BUT do men care because we feel like that? Not they. Cry on (weed and like) their attitude. But men really do know a lot about clothes—just get them over the tailored suit phobia and you are all right. Unless you are married to a male dressmaker, don't expect men to have an eye for anything but the result. They are beautifully vague about details, which, of course, explains why they can't see mascara or know when a woman is wearing her own face, or an artistic conception of how she should look like.

DOIT expect your husband to know how many buttons you have on your frock unless he has to button and unbutton them, and don't expect him keep playing you with complimentary remarks. He's had the offer of marriage, there is no other compliment necessary, and who knows but what he is right? He tells you quite enough when he looks at you with an opinion on the picture. After all, knowing he invariably shies at the ties his wife selects for him, isn't he being consistent in not liking what she buys for herself, and aren't you consistent in not liking what he wants you to wear?

BUT here is the opinion of a husband interviewed on the subject. After all, he may be voicing the opinion not of a particular husband, but husbands in general. He advises that when discussing clothes with your wife, say it with soft affirmatives. All wives give "yes man." When a husband says "No," love pussypoos down the tradesman's entrance or flies out the window. In discussing clothes with his wife, a man is merely an echo, a very faint echo, at that.

A HUSBAND is called into conference for a confirmation rather than an opinion when an emotional woman comes home from a shopping spree. A really wise man doesn't try to tell his wife anything about clothes, he "yeses" her until his tongue sticks to the roof of his mouth.

"Speaking sotto voce, as one husband to another," says this man, "I should say that mayhem, arson and infidelity are mere playful gestures compared to telling a spouse that she looks terrible in a dress that she took four days and ten fittings to select. Applauding a wife's taste in clothes will get a husband a warm dinner and the loan of a $10 bill until pay day, when honest constructive criticism would produce only a lot of cold tongue."

"Compliments count—don't ever doubt it. And think of the added expense when the seed of doubt has been planted in a woman's mind. She gives the offending garment to her youngest sister and goes downtown and buys another and more expensive ensemble, thus leaving the chatty husband with two black eyes instead of one.

"The man always pays anyway, but there's no reason why he would be tried for the same offense and found guilty both times. Away with an attitude anyway. It never was worth while."

A. YES MANN."

College Destroyed By Fire

THE SMOULDERING ruins after historic St. Joseph's College, founded in St. Joseph's, New Brunswick, Canada by Pere LeFevre in 1844, had been virtually destroyed by a $1,500,000 fire. The crumpled walls of the Administration building are seen silhouetted against a new wing still in flames.

Governor Of Kingfish Is Backing Down

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Governor O. K. Allen, ignored leaders of rebelling citizens in Louisiana's sixth district tonight that he was willing to call another election for April 15, if Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, Sr., would resign the seat in congress she won in yesterday's election.

Mrs. Kemp previously had offered to resign to placate the aroused citizens in her home district.

The governor, a follower of Huey Long, at whom the revolt is aimed, pointed out conditions which he said prevented holding an election now.

All registrations in Louisiana became void after January 1, 1934, he said, and voters must register again under the law. That process would require two months. Registration books must be closed 30 days before a primary.

The governor assailed the citizens and their local authorities for their "high handed tactics yesterday."

LINDYS LAND AFTER FLIGHT FROM AFRICA

NATAL, Brazil, Dec. 6.—(UP)—Triumph at the end of another trans-Atlantic flight, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh rested here tonight after a non-stop dash from Bathurst, British West Africa.

They reached Natal at 3:01 p. m. local time (12:01 p. m. CST) to receive the roaring applause of thousands gathered at the waterfront to welcome them back to the western hemisphere. With the colonel at the controls their red, white and blue biplane was sighted coming in last from the north, just north of 3 p. m.

He swooped his big ship low over the harbor and after circling the port and dipping his wings in salute to the throng below, turned the blunt nose of their plane into the wind and settled to a rapid, easy landing on the rippling waters of the cleared bay.

They made the 1870 mile flight over the ocean in 16 hours, cruising at a rate of slightly over 100 miles an hour, with a welcome tail-wind. They had expected to make the trans-Atlantic hop in 14 hours, but apparently Lindbergh, taking no chances, cut down the time as they neared South America, nursing their reduced fuel supply.

PRESIDENT HITS MOBS FOR ACTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—President Roosevelt tonight attacked the mob for its failure to take action against the bootlegger, saying that the government was doing its best to protect the public from the lawless element.

COOP EAGLES NEEDED

LAW SEES ACTION

"We recognize the right of the individual to seek and to obtain his own fair wage, his own fair profit, in his own fair way, just so long as in the doing of it he does not push down nor hold down his neighbor."

Mr. Roosevelt cited the early Christian teaching to the pagan of Greece and Rome as a model for the challenge the New Deal has hurled at the "Pagan" forces that are represented in many phases of our modern modern civilization.

"We have called on enlightened business judgment, on understanding labor and on intelligent agriculture to provide a more equitable and by individual education."

LICENSE TANGLE

With repeal of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act, authorities pointed out, there was no law to prohibit the government from issuing the licenses. However, it was said, the licenses would be worthless unless sales thereunder conformed with State laws, or unless State officials, expecting early repeal of State prohibition laws, secured sale under Federal licenses.

Reports reaching the capital today indicated the President's plea against the bootlegger and speak easy met an immediate response in some of the nation's larger cities. A drive against the speakeasy was inaugurated in New York, with more than 50 men arrested.

SCORES DISTILLERS

Meantime, Representative Connor, Dem., New York, Congressional wet leader, predicted that the government's war on bootleggers would be weakened by the distillers who, he charged, "will gouge the American public out of millions of dollars in the next few weeks."

Combined action by the distillers in keeping the price of liquor at higher levels will encourage more activity on the part of the bootlegger, he said.
